

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to the use asymmetric monolayer forming species and electroconduit forming species to detect target analytes.